DEATH RAINS ON AACHEN

Autogiro Arrives By Air Ferry

Apparently there's nothing in the line of supplies that our transports can't get to the many war fronts. Here's the fuselage of a helicopter (or autogiro) being unloaded from a transport at an American base in India . . . a few days after it left a factory in the States.

Big Guns Razing Aachen

By DON WHITEHEAD

OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 11 (AP)—The fate of Aachen was sealed today when the German commander of the garrison there declined to capitulate to the U. S. First Army's 24-hour ultimatum to surrender the city. At exactly noon the Yanks began hurling a terrible

HARD FIGHTING ALL ALONG SIEGFRIED LINE

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—As massed American big guns and dive bombers opened an assault to destroy Aachen today after its commander rejected a surrender-or-die ultimatum, First Army men closed their iron ring tighter about the city. To the north they seized Scharlenberg and Bardenburg, advanced to Wurselen, and mopped up Germans in the southern part of Haaren, northeast of Aachen.

South of the siege site, Third Army men and Germans battled underground in a winding tunnel at Fort Driant before Metz, ricocheting bullets off the walls. Doughboys and Germans were so close they could hear each other's orders.

The fierce struggle for surface positions in the fortress continued unchanged. Earlier today, Americans virtually cleared the enemy from Parroy forest and scored gains east of Lunville and Epinal. A house-to-house fight was on for Maiziere six miles above Metz.

Canadians sliced the main highway connecting the Scheldt estuary island of South Flevoland with the Dutch mainland, lopping off the escape route for thousands of Germans holding there who have prevented Allied use of Antwerp port.

To the southwest, other Canadian infantry widened their Scheldt river beachhead to four miles, and drove three miles inland in the backdoor assault on the Germans below the Scheldt's mouth. Berlin said this sea-borne landing east of Bremen opposite Flushing had been reinforced.

Violent fighting continued at the Canadian bridgehead over the Leopold canal, spearhead of the push from the south to knock the Germans from the lower Scheldt area.

The Allies heavily bombarded the holdout port of Dunkirk on the French coast.

Reds Tighten Baltic Trap

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP)—Russian troops fought within seven miles of Memel and 15 of the East Prussian rail center of Tilsit today after slashing to the Baltic sea above the port, cutting land routes for up to 150,000 Germans still in Latvia and Lithuania.

Yet another death trap was being fashioned in a Soviet drive southeast of Memel.

Red air force bombers and fighters attacked German shipping at Memel and Riga.

Two great new Russian attacks were reported by the Germans. The drives were north of Warsaw and south of Roznan, which lies near the Narew river north-east of the rubbled Polish capital.

British Occupy Port on Corfu

ROME, Oct. 11 (AP)—British troops in Albania have captured the port of Sarande (Porto Edda), isolating the German garrison on the island of Corfu, it was announced today.

weight of heavy shells and aerial might against the ancient city of Charlemagne, 155-millimeter Long Toms, 8-inch guns and 105-millimeter howitzers unleashed a thunderous assault.

The cacophony signaled that the assault on Aachen had begun and served as a warning to the Germans that their city will be destroyed if they are turned into fortresses.

Dive-bombers roared out of the sky and dumped their explosives about the enemy—hiding in cellars and the rubble of buildings battered by previous shelling and bombing.

Not all the German troops inside Aachen wanted to stay and fight to the death as their Fuehrer had ordered. Before noon more than 100 slipped through their own lines. They said many more were to accept the ultimatum, but their officers would not let them.

At dawn the Yanks saw hundreds of white sheets hanging from Aachen windows, obviously placed by some of the 15,000 civilians who defied Nazi orders for evacuation of all towns in this area. Once there were 165,000 inhabitants in Aachen.

Near noon the sheets began to disappear. Evidently the Nazis were forcing civilians to take them down.

If he had accepted the terms of ultimatum, the German commander of Aachen was to send a representative under a flag of truce to the railway on the outskirts of the city and arrange the surrender. The enemy was to pass through the line in groups of 50, leaving weapons behind.

Lookouts kept a watch on the prearranged meeting place. Several times it appeared as though the garrison might be surrendering when German soldiers neared the spot, but they were only trying to escape and bore no message.

At 10:50 a. m. no one had appeared. Automatically the plans for battering Aachen by artillery and air began to take shape. Noon was set for the opening of the artillery barrage. Extra ammunition had been issued to the gun crews. They stood in readiness.

Dive-bombers were alerted and within a few minutes were winging toward Aachen.

Play Safe!

ROME, Oct. 11 (AP)—The commander of the German 5th infantry division in Italy has ordered his troops "never to ride or walk alone in patriot territory."

Asserting that "German deserters are screening patriots," the order added that civilians had obtained German equipment, including uniforms. "Do not dose off or sleep. Be on your guard. Trust nobody and shoot on sight," the order said.

WESTERN FRONT—An all-out American smash to obliterate completely the ancient city of Aachen is now under way, following refusal of the Nazi garrison to surrender.

Blow at Japan Doorstep Fails to Lure Nip Fleet

By Associated Press

Hundreds of carrier-borne American planes, ranging to within 200 miles of Japan, struck at the Ryukyu Islands Monday (U. S. time) in their boldest attack of the Pacific war, destroyed 89 planes and sank or damaged 58 surface craft.

Tokyo radio said today 400 torpedo planes, bombers and fighters participated in the surprise raid. It said they came in four waves, from dawn until midafternoon, roving over 500 miles of the island chain between southern Japan and Formosa.

The attack, the first in the area at the very gates of the East China sea, failed to stir out the Japanese home fleet or the air armada based in Nippon and Formosa, both of which should have been within range of the American carriers.

It was probably the closest approach to Japan of any great U. S. naval force during this war. Adm. Nimitz reported no supporting ships were damaged and losses to Vice-Adm. Mitscher's carrier planes were light. Tokyo asserted 26 attacking aircraft were shot down.

Nimitz announced all Japanese "ships that could be found were attacked and severe damage was done to shore installations." He listed 12 ships, including a destroyer, as sunk, 14 probably sunk, 12 Formosa and 20 Japanese and other small craft as destroyed or damaged.

Tokyo said attacking planes ranged from Amami Oshima, 200 miles southwest of Japan's Ryukyu island, to Miyako, 200 miles east of Formosa and 300 miles from the China coast and the Philippines.

About 600 miles east of the Philippines, soldiers of the Army's 81st Division completed conquest of Garakoya islet in the Palau group within 24 hours. It was the tenth of the Palau islands to be conquered.

South of the threatened Philippine archipelago, fighter planes and PT boats broke up a Jap attempt to reinforce remnants of the garrison on Morotai island, now the closest Japanese airbase to the Philippines. Eighteen barges carrying troops and supplies were sunk or damaged.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said 400,000 Chinese regulars, cut off in eastern China by the Japanese drive down the center of the nation, still were capable of delivering massive blows.

Carom Shots In Fort War

U. S. THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 11 (AP)—One of the war's weirdest battles raged today beneath Ft. Driant guarding Metz, with doughboys and Germans at opposite ends of a curving tunnel trying to blast each other out with ricochet shots off the tunnel walls.

Lt. Gen. Patton's troops were using rifles, machine guns and bazookas, and the Germans were replying with carom shots flashing and crashing through the darkened tunnel.

The battle of the curving tunnel developed after the Americans found it unfeasible to use blasting charges against the Germans because the fumes were detrimental to the attackers.

The tunnel which is the center of the fighting runs from the Yank-held south end of Ft. Driant underneath one of the three main big-gun batteries to the southeast corner. The opposing sides are so close together in the narrow passage that they can hear each other's orders.

Yanks Push On Despite Italy Mud

ROME, Oct. 11 (AP)—American troops, still slowed by rain and deep mud, have reached the southern outskirts of Livorno, 11 miles due south of Bologna on Highway 65, and advance elements there are meeting fierce German counterattacks, it was announced today.

The pace of the fighting along the entire Italian battlefield generally was reported retarded by adverse weather.

Kidnaped Baby Son Found Disguised as Negro Child

DETROIT, Oct. 11 (INS)—Four-month-old Robert King was returned home early today and Detroit police held a Negro woman, Eleanor Smith, 33, in connection with the child's disappearance 10 days ago.

Police said no charge would be made against the woman until detectives had had time to question her.

When found, the baby had been tinted with suntan lotion and a "birthmark" had been painted on his forehead.

The baby was the object of a wide search by Michigan police and FBI agents after his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence King, reported that a mysterious nursemaid, known to them as Helen Rosman, had stolen the baby while they were attending a movie.

Acting on a tip by the Detroit Times, police and the King baby's father went to the Smith home and found a baby there. The child was in a crib in a dark corner. Mrs. Smith was so positive and calm she partially allayed the suspicions of the detectives.

Even King was convinced he was mistaken when the Negro woman showed him a large birthmark on the baby's forehead. However, police took the baby's footprint and after checking, found it similar to that of the King baby. A fingerprint taken from the Smith home matched one left on a glass by the nursemaid "Helen Rosman."

Police returned to the Smith home and washed the birthmark off the baby. Further washing revealed the child's skin was white.

Mrs. Smith's husband, released after questioning, told police:

"Eleanor went to Chicago last June. Returning, she told me she had a premature baby. She said the baby was in a hospital incubator.

"Around Aug. 4, Eleanor returned to Chicago and told me her baby had been stricken with infantile paralysis. She said she was not allowed to see the child, but that the hospital was to keep her posted."

Smith said his wife's actions gradually began to arouse his suspicions. He said the day the King baby was kidnaped, Eleanor told him the Chicago hospital was sending her child to Detroit. Calling the hospital in Chicago, hospital attendants told him they had never heard of his wife.

Maj. Bong Again Top U. S. Ace

By LEE VAN ATTA

FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Dutch New Guinea, Oct. 11 (INS)—Maj. Richard Bong, the boyish midwestern fighter pilot, has re-established himself as America's top ace by shooting down two Japanese planes over Borneo, International News Service learned exclusively today.

Recently returned from a two-month leave in the United States, Bong now has a score of 30 Japanese aircraft destroyed to his credit.

Acting as an "observer" with a formation of pilots he was training, Bong, according to Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of the Far Eastern Air Forces, was "forced to defend himself against the Japs" and upped his total of kills by two.

Bong, now an aerial gunner instructor for the Far Eastern Air Forces training center had accompanied his "graduating class" to check their air discipline the first time they met the enemy.

Fore River Parley Seeks to End Strike

In an attempt to settle the two-day strike of thousands of shipyard workers at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River plant, Navy officials and federal and State conciliators scheduled a conference today with management and union representatives.

Meanwhile, reports that the FBI had assigned agents to investigate the strike were emphatically denied at its office here.

Today's meeting was arranged by Com. L. F. Maider of the First Naval District, John J. Sullivan of the U. S. Conciliation Service and William J. Mullaney, president of the independent union of Fore River workers.

Earlier, union officers issued a statement asserting the main reason for the walkout is that we, the workers, recognize there is inefficiency, delay and mismanagement. Production is not at its peak. Full co-operation with the Navy Department is impossible."

Mullaney said the union is, nevertheless, 100 per cent behind the grievances expressed by the men who have walked out."

Mullaney said the union had attempted to persuade the strikers to return to their jobs so the War Labor Board could act in the dispute. He estimated the number of strikers at 2500.

Company officials, however, disagreed with this figure and said the stoppage involved 3500 pipe fitters, ship fitters, sheet metal workers and electricians, plus some sympathizing welders.

When the electricians walked out, production at the yard, which normally employs 22,000, came to a virtual standstill.

The management also disputed Mullaney's charge of inefficiency and mismanagement in a statement which said "the record of the Fore River plant speaks for itself."

The management statement said:

"We were asked to complete our allotment of LST boats before June. Instead, we completed our quota before May, a vital performance in the success of the Allied invasion of France.

"The Fore River yard is the only plant in the country with a diversified building program, including 35,000-ton battlewagons, aircraft carriers, combat and landing craft, and the yard has never failed to meet or better its construction schedule."

Navy Wife, Ill Children Living on $10 Weekly

Red Tape Puts 3 on $10 Week

The plight of Mrs. Olivera Moore, 21-year-old Cambridge wife of a sailor, and her two seriously ill children trying to eke out a bare existence on $10 weekly from the Red Cross was told today to the Boston American.

Since August, Mrs. Moore has not received her $100 monthly allotment from her husband, whom she last heard from July 23 from Ft. Houston, Tex.

Her two children, John Raymond, 1, and Robert Bruce, 2, are seriously ill with whooping cough and require medicine she cannot afford to buy them. One doctor, she said, refused to care for them because she had no money to pay him, and another made one visit and then failed to return.

Sickly herself, she tried desperately to work to increase the pittance she receives each week, but had to give up after three days because of her health and the serious illness of the children.

She is more than a month behind in the rent for her modest four-room home in Eighth st., East Cambridge, because her allotment checks are being delayed for some unknown reason.

Her relatives all have large families of their own and, although they managed to send her a dollar or two occasionally, or small amounts of food, they can't do much for her.

She recalled a similar lapse in the allotment payments last November and at that time she appealed to the Red Cross, which gave her $10 weekly while investigating the delay.

She said it was four months before the matter was straightened out and she has been informed by the Red Cross that it will be at least another month before the present tangle can be ironed out satisfactorily.

"I don't care so much about myself," she said, "but it's heart-breaking to see these poor, sick children and realize I can't pay for the food and care which they need."

Browder Pardon Probe Links New Deal to Reds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (INS)—Evidence that an understanding was reached between the Communist party and New Deal forces at the time of the presidential pardon from the penitentiary of Earl Browder, Communist chieftain, was indicated in correspond-from attributing the commutation of Browder's sentence to his current support of the fourth-term candidacy of President Roosevelt in collaboration with Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee.

In commenting on Pres. Roosevelt's recent declaration that the Administration had never sought or welcomed the support of Communists, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R) of New Jersey, referred to the admission of the Russian-born wife of Earl Browder, despite her confession she had entered the country illegally.

Chief Investigator Stripling and other members of the un-American Activities Investigating Committee pointed out further "favorite treatment" extended Communist-minded supporters of the fourth-term campaign including the following cases:

For eight years, the New Deal Administration has deferred deportation of Harry Bridges, alien Communist, now an active worker on the West Coast for the Political Action Committee.

When Browder was sent to the penitentiary for passport violation, it was pointed out, William Weiner, also a high official of the Communist party, was also convicted. Weiner has never served a day of his sentence because of so-called "hay-fever and a heart condition."

Black Market Buying All Scallops at New Bedford

The Boston American today has the answer to the queries of thousands of New Englanders wanting to know why one of their favorite foods has disappeared from the market at a time when it is most abundant.

The answer comes from irate wholesale fish dealers and the Massachusetts Fishermen's Association who charge that scallops cannot be caught for the Boston market because they are being absorbed as soon as they land in New Bedford by a gigantic black market which spirits them to New York hotels and restaurants and farms in the Middle West.

Edward H. Cullen, head of the association, disclosed today he had already informed OPA of this practice.

"But OPA has failed miserably in its police enforcement of its price ceilings," he said. "Dealers are buying the scallops at New Bedford at much higher prices than ceilings and after putting them in the freezers divert them for higher prices to other localities."

"OPA could stop the black market instantly by purchasing for the Army or to resell all the holdings in the freezers at the ceiling prices it has itself established. This would catch immediately the dealers who bought these holdings at higher prices as their perjury would thus be exposed and they would have to take the financial loss."

"There is one large wholesaler here in Boston who used to buy and sell from 20 to 50 barrels a week of scallops. He hasn't been able to get a hundred barrels at ceiling prices for 18 months."

"OPA sets a ceiling, then doesn't trouble to enforce it. This creates a situation favorable to the black marketer and makes it impossible for the legitimate dealer to operate. Net results of such ceilings has been to create a huge segment in the fish industry which has no regard for such laws."

"Scallops formerly were bought for $1 to $1.50 a gallon. Last week they were selling for $14 a gallon in the black market at New Bedford."

"Can any honest dealer compete with that?"

Unethical dealers admit that the trade in Cape scallops has been slowed by the hurricane, but claim this is only a fraction of the entire yield.

Expense 102 P. C., Alimony $1

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11 (AP)—Luis Alberni, a very funny little man in the movies, was ordered in alimony court to pay his wife $1 a month temporary alimony. He had told the court he couldn't pay very much alimony because . . .

"It costs me 102 1/2 per cent of my income to live."

The judge had to know how come.

"I earn $150 a day when I work," said the actor. "But no matter what I earn, 10 per cent goes for back taxes, 20 per cent goes for current taxes, 10 to my agent, 50 to my first wife and our three children, 10 for living expenses, 2 for state and federal deductions and one half to the Motion Picture Relief Fund."

Churchill, Stalin Parleys Resume

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP)—Talks between Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin and their aides moved forward today on a new note of harmony which at a state banquet at which the Soviet leader warmly praised British and American contributions to victory and toasted post-war Allied collaboration.

Twice during the elaborate three and one-half hour luncheon in Sprodomovka place, Stalin rose to emphasize the ties binding Russia and her western Allies.

The first time, he solemnly emphasized the need for post-war cooperation in the interests of international security.

Stalin praised the military might gathered by the United States and Britain, singing out for particular comment the high quality of British-American planning and the work of the merchant marine of both countries.

Churchill was visibly moved by Stalin's acknowledgment of the British-American war effort.

"It is a sign of a great nation and a great man to be magnanimous and generous," the British prime minister said.

Polish Minister Invited To Moscow Conference

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The exile Polish government ministry of information said today Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczak had been invited to join the conference between Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin in Moscow.

The invitation extended, also to Polish Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer, tended to confirm the belief that the long-standing Soviet-Polish dispute was a prime cause for Churchill's trip to the Russian capital.

World Bases Vital To U. S.—Bricker

BREMERTON, Wash., Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. Bricker today advocated that America maintain a strong system of outlying military bases after the war, and blamed President Roosevelt for the failure to fortify Guam.

The Republican candidate for vice-president, setting forth what he described as his party's position in an address prepared for delivery in the great shipyards vicinity of Bremerton, the President stated there:

"We were not allowed to fortify Guam, nor did we fortify Wake, or Midway or Samoa."

Bricker, referring to the valiant five-month stand of American soldiers on Corregidor, said in a prepared text released by his campaign staff:

"If ever there was an argument for retention, after this war, of a strong system of outlying military bases within the sphere of American responsibility for world security, Corregidor is that argument."

As for Guam, the Ohio governor said available evidence warranted the conclusion that fortification of it was not in the President's program.

"He was afraid of offending Japan," Bricker said. "It was the same reason for which he kept providing Japan with oil and scrap iron. He did not ask Congress to fortify Guam. Guam was not fortified Japan struck. The responsibility rests squarely upon the President."

Missing Newsie Hunt Speeded

While police intensified their hunt today for Paul J. Hart, 12-year-old newsboy who mysteriously disappeared last Saturday afternoon, the youngster's mother was reported in a state of nervous collapse and under a doctor's care.

Paul's parents, Fire Department Lt. and Mrs. William D. Hart, of Central ave., Hyde Park, who have six other children, asked police to search for the boy, asserting they believed he was the victim of foul play.

"Paul has never been away before," his father said. "He is a very good boy, an honor student at St. Raphael's School. He was wearing only knickers and a brown sport shirt."

The police description of the lad, broadcast throughout the city, said he was 4 feet 10 inches tall and weighed 80 pounds.

Know There's a War On?

Mothers of Fighting Men Tell Why Query Hurts

The quiet heroes of the home front, who have sacrificed loved ones on the world's battlefields and borne without complaint the lack of accustomed articles of food and clothing, are flooding the Boston American with letters voicing their disgust at the query:

"Don't you know there's a war on?"

Mothers and fathers who have lost beloved sons in the service; wives who are pining for long-absent husbands while trying to struggle along, uncomplaining, with their families; entertainers of servicemen and many others finally are becoming aroused by the persistent question.

Perhaps YOU, too, are becoming fed up with this irritating query invoked whenever someone can find no better report.

If you have, write a letter to the I-Know-There's-A-War-On Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston 6, Mass. Tell in not more than 100 words why you know there is a war going on, and any experience you may have had with this foolish question.

A $50 War Bond will be given to the writer of the best letter on the subject and $3 will be paid for each letter published.

"The question not only hurts," writes Mrs. R.C. of Lynn, "but is a disgrace to our country. It's not a question to be hurled while THEY are over there giving until it hurts to give us a better world. What do shortages of anything matter if we are spared the shortage of sons? I should know there is a war on—waiting alone with an aching heart, for in my window is a tiny flag with two blue stars."

"I've lost one son in the Philippines and another has been in many of the big battles in Europe," says I.T. of Wakefield, a disabled veteran of World War I. "I'm getting tired of that needless question: 'Don't you know there's a war on?'"

"The question is widely abused by persons who wish to avoid giving good service to the public," declares M.C.T. of Dorchester. "Can the moor who asks it be capable of understanding that most of us know too well about the war and are doing our utmost to hasten its end? Silence best answers it."

"My wife, five-year-old son and I have traveled the country entertaining servicemen for USO," writes L.L. of New York city. "I also have a son in the Marines. We have trouble getting rooms and meals and we sit on suitcases all night in the trains. Yes, a USO performer knows there's a war on."

Boys at Front Quit Guessing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (INS)—American soldiers have largely ceased speculating about the end of the war in Europe, a group of congressmen just returned from France disclosed today.

"They're too busy fighting," commented Rep. Stockman (R.) of Oregon.

"They're making no speculations at all," asserted Rep. Hays (D.) of Arkansas. "The unanimous opinion was that there was hard fighting ahead."

Rep. Miller (R.) of Nebraska remarked that whereas soldiers formerly talked of the war ending in October, they spoke now of "by the end of the year," if they made any predictions at all. "The closer you get to the front, the more you realize what a grim struggle is going on," declared Miller.

"There's a rather cautious type of optimism," stated Rep. Fisher (D.) of Texas, "but I heard very few predictions of when the war would end."

"They feel that the end of the war is approaching," added Rep. Phillips (R.) of California, "but as to when—well, you pay your money and you take your choice."

Grill Tar on Fist Fight At Rubin Murder Trial

Alexander Montelongo, a Navy storekeeper, resumed the stand in Suffolk Superior Court today under cross-examination on his story that Joe Rubin, Boston nightclub owner, had traded punches with Guy Formica just an hour before the latter was shot to death in a Warren st., South End, gutter.

Rubin, owner of the nightclub Showtime, is charged with manslaughter in Formica's death. Montelongo testified he hit Formica in the eye in breaking up a fist fight between Rubin and the victim, and figured in the resumption of the battle an hour later while leaving the club with Rubin for breakfast at a nearby restaurant.

The sailor said he jumped into the second fight and was felled by Formica just before the latter was shot through the stomach. Earlier, Doris Case, 21, pretty blonde singer at the Rubin night-spot, told the court how she met Formica, bartender in a tavern nearby, about three weeks before the fatal shooting.

Relating events of the night he was killed, she said:

"Mr. Formica and I went out to a tavern and had one whisky and coke between shows at Rubin's club. Then we went back and I dressed to go on for the 11 o'clock show."

"I started down the stairs and fell, landing on my ankle. I cut my knee on a piece of glass. It hurt so badly I sat down at my makeup bench and began to cry."

"One of the club employees saw me crying and pretty soon Guy came in with Joe Rubin."

"Joe asked what happened and I said I fell downstairs and cut my leg."

"Joe said he had heard some man was bothering me, and I told him no one had, but I just fell downstairs."

"When Guy and I went upstairs again, Joe Rubin was standing by the bar. He said, 'You reported to Ford's Agency tomorrow morning.'"

"I took it for granted I was fired because no employer ever tells a girl to get in touch with her agent unless he's fired her. I didn't say anything and neither did Guy."

"I went out the swinging doors and then Guy turned and went back to the club. That was the last I saw him."

"I went home to the Warren st. and went to bed. They woke me up at 2 o'clock to tell me Guy had been shot."

Blonde Sought In Ride Shooting

Boston police today were seeking a 28-year-old blonde waitress, slim and striking, known in the Back Bay, who holds the key to the whereabouts of two former convicts sought for grilling in the "ride" shooting of Robert T. Farina, 32, of Roxbury.

Special Officers Joseph E. Curran and John McNicholas had a good description of the girl after she beat them to an apartment recently occupied by one of the former convicts and removed all his effects.

Meanwhile State Police Insps. William Delany and Norman Butler were keeping watch at the Weymouth Hospital, where Farina is fighting for his life seeking to attempt to tie up his shooting with other recent gangland "ride" killings.

It is the belief the two former convicts may be implicated in the "ride" killing early this year of Arthur R. Duffy, South Boston and Miami jewel thief, and the murder of Yipsum Alapjan, alias Pepper Martin, former fighter, gambler and ex-convict.

Dist. Atty. Foley today ordered a grand jury probe of the Martin slaying stopped, indicating he hoped to tie it up with the Farina shooting.

One of the former convicts was known to have made a specialty of snatching jewelers' sample cases, which was the specialty of Duffy.

Blame Curfew Race In Crash Deaths of 4

HADLEY, Oct. 11—A swift dash to get in under the Smith College curfew deadline was blamed today for an automobile crash which took the lives of four students, two young men and two girls, and injured five others, all students at Amherst and Smith.

4 Army Heroes Awarded Medals

Four Massachusetts infantrymen have been awarded the Bronze Star for heroic achievement, it was announced today by the War Department.

Heading the list was Capt. Robert W. Williams of Blanchard st., Rockland, who provided vital information during the early days on Guadalcanal.

Others included S-Sgt. James E. Watson of Granite st., Cambridge, who volunteered for two patrols in Italy and returned both times with prisoners; Sgt. Walter J. Nowak of Ludlow st., Indian Orchard, who aided in evacuating wounded under heavy fire; and T5 Eugene S. Carver of Beacon st., Boston, who administered first aid to wounded on New Guinea many times under fire from snipers.

Chief Justice Stone Has 72d Birthday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, presiding over a tribunal now tackling the first work of a potentially complicated new term, became 72 years old today.

His schedule called for spending the day on the bench and in conference with his Supreme Court colleagues.

LOVE WINS—Charles Allen, 19-year-old discharged sailor who was jailed in Denver after his mother, Mrs. Pearl Wiggins, wired police from Florida to halt his proposed marriage, was released when she arrived and gave her consent. So, Charles married Jocena Wilkins, 22, who is being congratulated by Judge P. B. Gilliam as Allen and his mother stand by. Associated Press Wirephoto

Nine college students were packed in the passenger automobile when it crashed a concrete abutment at Flaherty's highway underpass here, with the college three miles away and four young women left with six minutes to meet the dormitory deadline of 10:15 p. m.

They had been guests at a party at Amherst.

Dead were Jane E. Hearn, 19, of Pomeroy ave., Pittsfield; Donna Marie Payne, 20, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Horton H. Grant, 18, of Encino, Cal.; and Charles Elton Ayers, 21, of Commonwealth ave., Worcester.

In serious condition today at Coolidge Dickinson Hospital in Northampton were Howard Stein, 18, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who police said was the driver; Robert Howard, 18, of Common st., Woburn; John Patrick, 18, of Montclair, N. J.; and Peggy Tennenbaum, 17, of Far Rockaway, L. I.

The sole occupant to escape without serious injury was Mary E. Dickason, 18, of Short Hills, N. J., who was taken to the Smith College Infirmary.

The dead and injured spilled out of the car when it failed to hold the roadbed and crashed into the abutment.

Ayers, only son of a prominent Worcester physician, was graduated yesterday from Amherst. Besides his parents, he leaves two sisters, Margaret C. Ayers, Vassar student, and Dorothy Ann of Worcester.

Miss Hearn was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hearn. She entered Smith as a freshman less than a month ago. She leaves a sister, Elizabeth, of Hartford, and a brother, William, at home.

Miss Dickason and Patrick recently became engaged. Her condition was described as "not critical." Patrick suffered a fractured skull.

Howard's name remained on the tangle list. He suffered severe internal injuries, fractured thigh and multiple cuts and bruises.

The Smith faculty and student body joined today in a memorial service for the two girl students killed.

Weeks Adds Voice For Slugging Probe

Public clamor for a full investigation into the beating of two Naval officers by members of the Teamsters' Union in a Washington hotel beat louder in the ears of Atty-Gen. Francis Biddle today, with U. S. Sen. Sinclair Weeks the latest to demand action.

Sen. Weeks is just one of a score of the nation's legislators who have called on Biddle—thus far silent on all phases of the nationally famous case—to begin an immediate investigation.

The Bay State Senator sent the following message to the Attorney General:

"Vitality concerned over report of assault by members of the Teamsters' Union on Naval officers recently reported in news dispatches. May I direct your attention to Section 314.

Hungary Chaos Reports Mount

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—With Russian and Yugoslav troops closing in on Hungary, a new flock of rumors sprang up today in neutral capitals and the Moscow radio relayed these unverified reports from Stockholm:

- 1—Disturbances in Vienna over a cut in food rations have spread to other parts of Austria.
- 2—Graz, capital of Styria, was captured by insurgents and the Germans now are threatening to bombard the town from the air.
- 3 The Hungarian government has decided to evacuate Budapest's civilian population to western Hungary.
- 4—Diplomatic missions are quitting Budapest.
- 5—A number of Vienna professors have been sent to concentration camps.
- 6—All men and women remaining in Vienna and the lower Danube district of Austria have been ordered to report immediately to erect fortifications.

Berlin Phones Cut by Gestapo

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 11 (AP)—The newspaper Stockholmstidningen declared today telephone communication between Berlin and Stockholm had been interrupted by the German Gestapo because a new opposition group composed of army officers was trying to establish contact with Allied legations in Stockholm through industrial representatives.

The newspaper said all those suspected by the Gestapo now were believed arrested. It did not cite the authority for its statements.

2 N. E. Missionaries Interned by Japs

Two women missionary relatives of New England families have been interned after the Japanese occupation of Foochow, China, and another reported "unharmful" at another station, the American Board of Foreign Missions announced today.

The missionaries, all Congregationalists, are:
Dr. Lora G. Dyer, acting superintendent of the mission hospital and sister of C. Frederick Dyer of Plainfield and Miss Lydia S. Houston, sister of Mrs. William C. Sipe, of Hollis, N. H., who is interned with her, and Miss Susan B. Armstrong, sister of Mrs. F. S. Greer, of Na. Attleboro, "unharmful" at another station.

Lt. Josephine Baker Arrives in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Josephine Baker, wearing a natty blue air auxiliary lieutenant's uniform, is the latest theatrical star to arrive here.

Miss Baker said if she were not in the service her greatest wish would be to appear again at the Casino De Paris. Arriving from Morocco, she said she has been working as a liaison officer following a serious illness in Casablanca.

Beware Coughs That Hang On

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

5 Days to Deadline On Gifts to Buddies

The last chance for enrollment in the Christmas Gifts for Buddies Overseas Campaign is fast approaching and unless you hurry, your opportunity to make an overseas fighting man happy on Christmas Day will be gone.

Enroll today by filling out the coupon accompanying this article. Mail it to the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser, sponsor of the campaign, and you will receive the name of a soldier, sailor, marine, coast guardsman or merchant mariner to whom your gift will be a cheery reminder of Christmas at home.

The official deadline for starting Christmas packages overseas is Sunday, Oct. 15. In many communities the post office will not be open that day so you must check to be sure you get your gift into the mails in time.

The opportunity to make a fighting man happy on Christmas Day has been grasped by young and old, rich and poor.

From 77-year-old Mrs. Frank P. Douglas of Central st., Turners Falls, came an urgent request for the name of a fighting man. Like all other thoughtful and kindly persons enrolling in this demonstration, Mrs. Douglas wrote of the pleasure to the doer of a kind deed as well as the keen appreciation of the recipient.

And from a Dedham High School girl, Miss Mary Demingo of Cedar st., Dedham, was received an enrollment application with the comment:

"I have been looking for something to do with my allowance and help at the same time. The Christmas Gifts for Buddies Overseas is the answer. Thank you very much for this opportunity."

If you haven't enrolled already, do it today. Remember, Sunday, Oct. 15, is positively the final date for mailing packages destined for overseas fighting men. Send a little touch of Christmas at home to the boys who are fighting so you can continue to enjoy it. Don't forget them; they haven't forgotten you!

2 N. E. Veterans' Hospitals O. K'd

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The federal board of hospitalization and President Roosevelt have approved the general plans and allotment for a 150-bed veterans' hospital in New Hampshire and a 400-bed hospital in Rhode Island.

Work on the hospitals cannot begin before next summer, however, and may not be started even then, Col. Lewis H. Tripp of the veterans administration asserted. In neither state has the location been selected, Col. Tripp said.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—My husband is a S-Sgt. in the Marines. Could you please tell me what my allotment should be a month. I have a two-months old baby? M. G. H. Weymouth.

A—Your allotment should amount to $80 monthly. $20 for wife and $60 for child.

Q—My husband's $10,000 National Service Life Insurance Policy was burned in fire at our home recently. Where can I apply for another one, or is it necessary? L. J. C. Dorchester.

A—No policies are issued on National Life Insurance. Only a certificate of insurance is sent the original beneficiary. That is probably what was burned. It is not necessary to have it in your possession.

Q—I was given a medical discharge after serving more than 90 days, but less than 90 days. Do I come under the GI Bill, am I eligible for the loan? J. M. South Boston.

A—You are eligible for the GI Bill, saying your discharge was for a disability incurred while in service. Otherwise the answer is no. The loan provision must enter the GI Bill.

Q—I am a disabled veteran of the American service. I would like to know the requirements for joining the Disabled American Veterans, and if eligibility is being service-incurred, where can I make semi-application? F. G. C. Chelsea.

A—Once receiving compensation from the government for service-incurred disability, you are eligible for membership in the Disabled American Veterans. Local headquarters is located at French street, State House.

Q—Are I send my discharge papers order to receive a World War service pin. I served in the navy. Do I send copy of discharge, or the original? J. J. Lowell.

A—Send original discharge, registered with U. S. Navy Records Station, Forge Building, South Boston, Mass.

Q—I was honorably discharged from Army, Col. last February. My discharge papers have since been destroyed by fire. I am anxious to get another copy. Will you show I can obtain a duplicate? M. J. Dover, N. H.

A—Write Adjutant General, Washington, D. C. for copy. Your letter all is forwarded to a bureau which now being established somewhere in North Carolina. The exact address I haven't traced. However, it will become one before you receive notice.

(Questions submitted to Veterans' Friend Editor, Boston Evening American, will be answered in its daily column.)

BOSTON'S MODERN PORT MUST BE STARTED NOW!

The travel and shipping habits of Americans have been disrupted by five long years of war, years when they have been unable to travel or route goods on the ships or from the ports of their own choice.

Within the next few years these habits will be re-formed . . . and may well become set for a long time to come.

When the peacetime merchant fleets again sail the ship lanes of the world and shippers and travelers once more are free to make their own selections for themselves or their goods—Boston must be ready to take its place among the great modern ports of the eastern seaboard.

This can be Boston's opportunity to guide tomorrow's shippers and travelers through the New England gateway to and from Europe, South America, Africa, and other world ports.

Groups of far-seeing Boston business and professional men have accepted the challenge and are mobilizing for action.

Their efforts should receive the wholehearted cooperation and support of all progressive groups and individuals within Boston's economic sphere of influence.

We of the New Haven Railroad have high hopes for Boston's future. We are going to establish a Foreign Traffic Department for the purpose of bringing new and more export and import traffic to the port of Boston.

This new department will have the assistance of our off-line traffic offices in Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Seattle and San Francisco, as well as offices throughout New England. It will be the objective of our Traffic Agents to sell the port of Boston to midwest and western shippers, and they will be a source of up-to-the-minute information regarding ship arrivals and departures. They will be backed by aggressive merchandising and advertising that will feature the natural advantages of shipping through Boston.

Obviously our interest in the port we serve centers largely around freight traffic. Like many other industries, we are looking for new business to replace that resulting from military requirements. We believe a modern port will attract world export and import trade to Boston—and will result in increased traffic for our railroad.

It is also to your interest that Boston again secure its share of sea-borne commerce. For as the port of Boston prospers, so shall we all prosper in the fruitful years ahead.

This is Boston's opportunity. Now is the time to start building it into a reality.

was to receive the surrender if the enemy capitulated.

No correspondents were permitted to visit that advance unit.

"We do not want anything to happen which might prevent the surrender," an officer explained. "If there is any unusual movement, the enemy might get suspicious, and there might be a hitch. We want to give them every possible chance and then what happens after that is their own responsibility."

The hands of an old grandfather clock in one room ticked off the minutes. Artillery kept firing, not into Aachen but northeast of the city against enemy troops forming up for a counter-attack against Crucifix hill. Planes circled overhead.

The hands of the clock reached 10:50 and moved on.

A high-ranking officer came to the doorway of the command post, and shook his head.

"Yesterday we told the Germans in Aachen to surrender or we would destroy their city," he said. "This morning they decided to let us do it. The officers refuse to surrender. Now we have to break the will of the officers. The ultimatum is not without its mixed blessings. We got a lot

Legion Post Leader Is Mother of 2 Girls

By PAULINE WARREN

When more than 300 meet a woman veteran to be commander of an American legion post—an honor rare indeed—it might be surmised the lady is the bluff, boisterous type with qualities of leadership resembling those of a top sergeant.

But Mrs. Frances E. MacDonald, newly installed post officer of Brighton-Allston Post, is a slight, gentle, soft-spoken housewife who has brought up two daughters soon to become veterans of this war. The elder, Mary, 20, has enlisted in the WAC. Frances, 17, is joining the Cadet Nurse Corps.

In her official regalia of gold-braided uniform and tailored cap, Corn. MacDonald has the martial air of a general, despite her diminutive size, and the men in her post obey her as they would a general.

In the last war she first served as a yeoman, then was promoted to chief petty officer. This training is now standing her in good stead.

Her fellow members are proud of her and treat her just like any other veteran.

"I have never understood why there should be a distinction, is her attitude. 'A veteran is a veteran.'"

Because the post is concentrating on rehabilitation work for recently returned veterans, she feels this is a crucial year in its existence—a year in which twice the usual work should be accomplished.

Besides doing all the work in her home on Mapleton st., Brighton, and running the Legion post, she let finds time to help with other community affairs such as the police parties for children on Halloween and the big Armistice dinner at Legion headquarters.

Her husband, Angus MacDonald, Boston newspaperman, was commander of the post during 1936-37.

She has a group of officers she terms the best that can be found.

Her senior vice-commander is J. George Kelley; junior vice-commander, John W. Hannon. Edward A. Lythgoe is adjutant; Peter J. Seel, finance officer, and Harvey R. Smith, chaplain.

Others are Hugh Dolan, historian; Warren C. Burnham, Americanism officer; Thomas E. Brady, sergeant-at-arms; Paul D. Everett, graves registration officer, and James W. Sullivan, service officer.

OUTRAGEOUS

THE DECISION of Massachusetts not to count ballots which service men mailed before their deaths in action is unworthy of a State which has always held its defenders in fondest regard.

The decision announced by Frederic W. Cook, Secretary of State, is almost like saying to the honored dead:

"We who enjoy safety purchased at the cost of your life are so far from grateful that we now intend to deny you a voice in the democracy you died to preserve."

Mr. Cook argues that old laws still on the statute books give him no other alternative but to order the destruction of all ballots received from men reported dead by the War and Navy Departments.

If that is so, the old laws must be brought up to date either by the Governor exercising his extraordinary emergency powers or by the Legislature convening in special session.

It should interest Mr. Cook to know that his ruling is directly opposite to that of New York, whose Ballot Law Commission has decreed that all ballots of service men MUST BE COUNTED, even if the men who marked them were killed in action BEFORE THE ELECTION.

New York takes the common sense view that "by executing the oath on the ballot envelope and mailing it, the service man showed his qualifications to vote."

A similarly practical interpretation of the law in Massachusetts by the Attorney General or some other responsible official might upset Mr. Cook's unfortunate decision and enfranchise our currently disenfranchised soldier dead.

MASSACHUSETTS frequently brags about its service vote legislation.

Actually, this State has accomplished only a little of the much that it could have done.

For some never satisfactorily explained reason, the present administration refused to amend ancient rules and regulations to allow fighting men of 18, 19 and 20 years of age to participate in elections.

In spite of the fact that teen-age soldiers have repeatedly demonstrated their fitness for authority and great responsibility at home and abroad, Massachusetts continues to cling to the hypocritical belief that a lad of 18 is old enough to give his life for his government but NOT OLD ENOUGH to have a word to say about how his government is conducted.

And now, as if to add insult to injury, we smugly proceed to nullify the ballots of fine young men who died confident that their State and communities would remember and revere them.

Let the gentlemen on Beacon Hill wake up before the aroused and angered electorate does it for them.

SPLENDID WORK

NO OBSERVANCE of Fire Prevention Week would be complete in Boston without a word of praise for the great work of the United States Coast Guard.

During the past year the Coast Guard battled 389 waterfront fires in this area, fought 45 ship fires and assisted municipal firemen in coping with two major conflagrations ashore.

Thanks to the Coast Guard, not a single waterfront fire reached the disaster stage.

It is appropriate therefore that honors for Fire Prevention Week's best statement should go to Capt. Frank Meals of the Port of Boston.

"Fires should be treated like wars," says Capt. Meals. "You should be ready to fight them and have everything to fight them with, but if it is much more sensible to try to prevent them."

Oh, how I love you,
You sweet little dove you!
There's no one above you
Most beautiful Kate,
Not the beauty of Idipus
Nor the taste of mint juleps
Can compare with your two lips,
Most beautiful Kate.

—MAGINN.

A MARINE sergeant requests "a poem about a girl named Kate." The above is the only one I can think of right now. . . . The three most beautiful streets in the world in order named are Champs Elysee, Paris; Princess street, Edinburgh, and the Ringstrasse, Vienna. Such is the decision of several experts on the subject. . . . Now a Bostonian, evidently looking for an argument, wants to know what is the most beautiful square or plaza in the world. His nomination is the Plaza of St. Marks in Venice. I am inclined to agree with him. Still I think a lot of the beauty of the Park Plaza, 59th st. and 5th ave., Manhattan, especially on a clear October day.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: In a San Francisco restaurant patronized by men of the armed forces there is a sign up: "Watch your hat, your overcoat and your girl friend." . . . In France the telephone girl says: "J'accuse" which means "I am listening." . . . When one Paris auto driver wishes to criticize the bad driving in traffic of another person he yells: "Broter! Broter!" This is meant to indicate the offender should go to an automobile school and learn how to drive. It is too bad there isn't a good one-word insult for auto drivers in the English language.

SIDELIGHTS: Film magazine writers keep saying Ann Sheridan was a school teacher in Texas. This column appears in several Texas cities. Wonder if I have a reader who was one of Ann's pupils. Would like to know what kind of a teacher she was and how many apples she received daily. . . . The best Western stage play of all time was "The Round-Up" starring Maclyn Arbuckle, and in which he spoke the immortal line: "Nobody loves a pit man." In one scene in this play there were 16 bucking broncos on the stage. These broncos really bucked. On several occasions they bucked right off the stage into the orchestra pit.

PASSING BY: Jan Kiepura. And the charming Mrs. Kiepura, professionally known as Maria Egerth. . . . Of all the married co-stars of the stage and screen in your memory, which is your favorite? How about E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe? Or Herbert Kellecey and Effie Shannon? Or Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne? Or Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew?

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q: As to the lines, "I have been faithful to thee, Cynara, in my fashion" by Ernest Dowson, is it not a fact that the "Cynara" referred to was a waitress in a London restaurant? A: In writing these lines Dowson may have had Adelaide Foltynowicz in mind. Adelaide's father owned a restaurant in the Soho district of London. Dowson was in love with her. She didn't care for him. She married a waiter. Q: You often refer to what other people say is the best way "To hold a husband" but never give out with your opinion on this matter. How about it? A: According to our Maths & Men Department experts, the way to hold a husband is to criticize discreetly, dress smartly, cook and serve meals brilliantly, arrange a home intelligently and love cleverly. Our Mr. & M. experts say the last named is the most important. They also say a wife should do everything to convince her husband he would be lost in a fog without her.

DIFT: It is reported that a "snack" between meals for employees has speeded up production in some war plants. A bite around 11 in the morning and at four in the afternoon breaks the working day nicely. I have been eating five meals a day for years. However, I don't eat any more in these five meals than I formerly did in three.

ASIDES: Am asked what town has erected a statue in honor of Popeye. It is Crystal City, Tex., which describes itself as "The Spinach Capital of the World." . . . "We like to argue about sports in our outfit," writes a U. S. Army sergeant. "Ask a question about boxing that will start an argument." All right, sergeant. I shall ask how much a man should weigh to be eligible to box in the flyweight class. And who is the present flyweight champion of the world?

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Adolf Berle, the old varsity brain-truster, has cut himself a liberal slab of umbrage because Gov. Dewey, in his Charleston speech, said Berle once advocated a system whereby the government "would tell each of us where we would work, at what and for how much."

Without passing judgment as to whether Mr. Berle did or didn't say that, I must warn him that if he does repudiate these ideas he is out of step with his eminent colleagues, Mrs. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, and reads himself right out of the cult.

Not long after Pearl Harbor, Mrs. Roosevelt came out for precisely the system that Mr. Dewey described and with a little more emphasis and detail, too. Mrs. Roosevelt wrote exactly as follows:

"I've come to one very clear decision, namely that all of us, men and women in the services and men and women at home, should be drafted and told what job we are to do. The only way I can see to get the maximum service out of our citizens is to draft us all and tell us where we can be most useful and where our work is needed."

On another day, moreover, Mrs. Roosevelt expressed impatience with that quaint American way which permitted a young man to become a doctor merely because he wanted to be a doctor and to sit for patients wherever he elected to, regardless of the community's needs.

"I don't know whether my opponent," meaning Mrs. R.'s husband, "calls that system Communism or National Socialism or Fascism," Mr. Dewey said at Charleston. "He can take it anyway he likes. It's his program, not mine."

ACTUALLY, it is Communism, National Socialism and Fascism, because such controls are inherent in all three. Anyway, it certainly is Hitlerism for which, by a charming irony, President Roosevelt has been known to express a degree of distaste, because Hitler, as you probably remember, bore down with great emphasis on the folly, as he saw it, of permitting a young Heine to become a doctor or violinist when there was a current shortage of plumbers or airplane mechanics. Or, having permitted a young man to become a doctor, Hitler reserved the power to select the site of his practice.

If there were already three doctors in a three-doctor town, the new young doctor couldn't practice there even though it were his home town and, of course, this control presented opportunities for the bureaucrats to shake down the medical profession for favoritism in assignments.

This might be a temptation to some of Mr. Roosevelt's political colleagues, unthinkable though it may be to some of us, that the Joe Guffey machine or the Hague or Kelly mobs could stoop to venality in the service of that bleeding hearts of Washington so patronizingly refer to as the common man.

MR. HOPKINS went even a little further than Mrs. Roosevelt.

In a magazine article, written by a ghost under his name, Mr. Hopkins was firmly admonitory and said: "No American, anywhere, not in the war effort, should be allowed to decide for himself how much he will do or how much he will give."

Mrs. Roosevelt hadn't said anything about giving.

"Millions not now in jobs must go to work," Mr. Hopkins wrote. "Women who cannot work in factories and shops will perform such essential tasks as caring for children whose mothers are working in munitions plants."

"Workers will have to be billeted in homes and many a social leader will become a boarding house keeper. Doctors and dentists will go to communities where they are most needed."

"Some students should quit high school. I see no reason for wasting time on nonessentials such as Chaucer and Latin. A diploma can only be framed and hung on the wall."

SO HERE, from two of the most powerful New Dealers we have a scenario even more drastic and detailed than that Mr. Dewey attributed to Mr. Berle, the only hedge being, of course, that this program is proposed primarily as a war emergency measure.

But Mr. Roosevelt has never yet relinquished any power or control granted him for emergency and, moreover, if the entire nation were in the government service then, obviously, demobilization and re-employment in private industry never could be accomplished. That may be what Mr. Dewey had in mind.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11—I'll say for Darryl Zanuck, he certainly picks the best sellers, even before they become the nation's favorites. Of course, Somerset Maugham's "Razor's Edge," which he has bought for a fancy price, was already on the "ten best" list, before he handed over a check for 20th.

But, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "Leave Her to Heaven," "Cluny Brown," "A Bell for Adano," and, of course, modestly prevents the list for some months, were all bought from gaily proofs.

Mary Pickford

There was spirited bidding for "Razor's Edge," and at one time it was supposed to belong to an independent company, but all the Fayers are cleared and it now is the property of 20th Century-Fox.

I ASKED Mary Pickford about reports she had bought "Anna Lucasta," John Wildberg's new play. She said she had seen it in New York and it's a powerful drama on the order of "Anna Christie," but she hadn't made a deal. "If I should buy it," said Mary, "I'll change it back to the original idea of having the family a Polish one instead of Negro. I have never made a reasonable picture," she said, "and this would take considerable re-writing." Our Mary will start her career as a producer with "One Touch of Venus" and she told me she's going to get her organization together first before she starts actual production.

THE ENERGETIC partners, Bill Pine and Bill Thomas, have signed Ann Savage for three of their forthcoming pictures. She's an extremely pretty girl and was formerly under contract to Columbia. Amazing how these Pine and Thomas epics, made at not too big a budget, continue to flourish and entertain the people. The boys have done very well in the few years they have been in the producing business. Their next picture, "You'll Be the Death of Me," and what a title, will have Miss Savage and Jack Haley as stars. It will be Jack's last picture since his overseas trip.

THEY'RE STILL waiting to hear from Alice Faye whether she'll report at 20th for "State Fair." The picture will go into production next month and Alice will have to make up her mind pretty soon. Joan Blondell, who is under contract to the studio, has been discussed as the possible "State Fair" heroine by William Perlberg and Walter Lang in case Alice feels she isn't ready to make a picture. "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" was previewed for the New York aggregation and many were the whispers of how good Joan is and of what well performances Dorothy McGuire, Peggy Ann Garner, Jummie Dunn and all the rest give. In "War work is wonderful! I won every fight I had with my husband last week!"

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD. Cary Grant is shutting his ears and eyes to all movie offers for the next few months. He is refusing to make any pictures until he starts "Night and Day," the Cole Porter musical, for Warners in about three months. That's because he wants to devote all time to Earlhart Hutton, with whom he recently reconciled. Cary felt perhaps that some of their misunderstandings had come because while he was working and making pictures he was away from home so much. And so he has decided the most important thing in his life is his happiness with his wife, with whom he is deeply and sincerely in love.

WAS VERY INTERESTED to hear the pretty red-haired Jane Farrar is replacing Margaret Early in "A Song for Miss Julia" on account of Margaret has the flu. Jane came to see me a few weeks ago and I was impressed with her pep, her ideas on life and her courage in not letting a few bad breaks up-

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Eddie Buzzell and Mary Lord, M-G-M actress, are a very serious twosome; the good looking Sgt. Gallery having dinner with Shirley Temple at the Beverly Tropics; ZaSu Pitts son, Lt. 1121 Robert Stock, is in the South Pacific and might be happy about it after being stuck in Oakland on a ground job two years; the three teenage youngsters trailing Maria Montez in New York are her sisters who are in school in Philadelphia; it's Dick Crane and not Freddie Brocino who is dating Dick Rossell. She met Dick at the party the Alan Ladd gave for Al Delacorte, and since she has been seeing him daily, "I met all the actresses at Ladd's," Brocino said, but I am married and not romantically inclined toward anyone but my wife; Bing Crosby gets in town Friday and does a command performance show for the boys overseas on Saturday; That's Old Bing for you, Dorothy Lamour looking very New York in her clothes at the Norman Taurer wedding reception with her Maj. William Ross Howard. All of the MGMers were on hand to greet Norman and his bride as well as many item other studios; news that Lt. Clem Robert Montgomery is out of uniform he'll report at M-G-M very shortly; Clark Gable, who returned from Washington a few days ago, was guest at the party the Howard Hawks gave honoring Gen. Arnold. Knowing how much hard work Clark put into the Army picture he made, it seems a pity it cannot be released to the public. Hear it's a swell picture; the Eddie Lowe-Lady Furness romance is still hot. That's all today.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Press agents never show bank books unless they belong to clients. Rash in imagination, they recognize no limits, and the license they take in the name of "color" allows no sanctuary, even for a Queen, a President or Darryl Zanuck.

Rudy Vallee poses again because he gives 130 to me.

"ADVERTISE" publicity there are some on Broadway who hold that there is no such thing, so long as the name is spelled approximately right is the key to the miraculously turned theft, and you can almost always detect his fine Fifth Avenue hand behind the knife that is thrown.

But, particularly in this better times it is the client who continues to get his 100 for one, for controversy is the pollen that flowers a career, particularly in show business.

In this matter, I can a check history repeats itself. A decade ago, promoters were born and got as much space as the war does today. Several millionaires emerged from the column of publicity, among them two who shall not be nameless Crosby and Vallee. Lush days are here again for the little singing men and that reminds us of the press agency in the far from hazy days of the Groaner and the Adenoid.

RUDY'S SHAKY tinambulations in sotto voce had set him on a pedestal erected by the housewife clan in the apple-for-a-nickel era. His campaign ignored the hobby-saver, for it was built around the fascinating idea of waiting the little woman away from the kitchen sink and into the ephemeral plant of never-wink-admiration. Along came Russ, Columbus with his backs stressing this theme isn't he divine? And then the pipe-smoking Bing with his chin-blue eyes and a bold pitch based on nothing fancy, just here is a guy who sings 'em the way that won't make the boy from Ilangy.

Now come the attack and counter attack barrage from the press agents. Vallee got his peculiar style by pushing a lima bean up one nostril! Con Conrad, Columbus's composer-manager, had to hypnotize Columbus before he sang and there was always a doctor in attendance after every performance! Crosby couldn't sing a note unless he downed a quart of whiskey to give him his husky quality, and an inhaler was the important part of his backstage equipment.

Talk of suits filled the air and fist fights were scheduled that never quite came off, and suddenly all three were on pedestals made from by hard-boiled dillars and long-term contracts.

I HAVE OUTLINED an elaborate program of activities for the HIMS. We will have outings and clambakes. Every fall we will have an Ikes road. There will be competitive sports, with married men vs. single men, and breath-holding contests, the winner to be adjudged capable of sitting in the same room with Ikes three minutes.

The clubhouse, naturally, will be pretentious. One of the indoor recreations I have in mind is a darts game. But instead of throwing the darts at a board we will throw them at other members who happen to be caught bending.

WE HAVE HAD many suggestions for a club yell but the one I like best so far goes: "Two-four-six-eight! 'Whom do we respect?' 'Ike—er—er!'"

HURRY UP with your applications. We are limiting membership to 135,000,000, including children!

ON HIS OWN valuation, I have tentatively admitted Mr. Mallon to membership in the HIMS. But he must substantiate his claims further at the next meeting.

It is all right for him to say that he loves Ikes in a peculiar sort of way. Who doesn't?

But I am not going to surrender Harold to him just on his say-so. Loved ones are not given up so lightly. It is easy to talk about sacrifice these days, but it is asking much too much to ask me to get along without Ikes.

LOOKING AT HAROLD, it seems inconceivable that he could be the cause of so much jealousy. This editor that Al Morano wrote me about he edits the Bridgeport Life—practically froths over Westbrook Pegler's claims.

There is also a lady who begs Harold for her own. This lady, whose name is Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, seems to have a flimsy claim, however. She likes Ikes merely because he flattered her in a speech in Hollywood the other night. He suggested her for Secretary of War "because she is an expert in poison gas."

ANYWAY, I have not decided yet whether to admit women to membership. We want to have ladies' nights and it would be silly to have ladies' nights in a club which already has ladies!

Boston After Dark

IN THE SINGLE-SPACED typing of his own hand, and with the neat red ink corrections that were characteristic of the mechanics of his scribbling, a column comes coincidentally to this desk which reveals the late O. O. McIntyre, long the outstanding leader of the paragraphing school of writing, as a prophet. . . . The column, unfortunately, carries an insufficient date line: "New York, April 23 . . ." with the year lacking.

ITS CONTENT proves that the column was written a decade (at least) ago. . . . It speaks of Frank Crum, of Clark Fodor and Charles Farrell, of Mrs. Vincent Astor in earlier ones and her resemblance as a "young look-alike" to Queen Mary. . . . All of the familiar and oft-copied McIntyre sub-heads are present in this column from the "grave" . . . "Thoughts while strolling. . . ." "Sudden thought. . . ." And a notion from which the late Odd derived some fun entitled "Exact quotation from a radio talk on good English. . . ." This paragraph "exact quotation" read "Every one of us can increase our vocabulary."

BUT THE PARAGRAPH which struck us electrically reads as follows: "It is the free commissioner's job and perhaps seldom or not paid, yet in the sudden upshot of so many cases alone, I feel there is a great danger because of free hazards. . . . So much so there are several I feel and others in this paragraph a fair new estimate for a quick bound out in case of emergency. . . . Entrances are cumbersome and the narrow aisles are often clogged with food weapons. A sudden burst of flame, it strikes me, could go roaring through a dozen of these places and leave a mouth of disaster. . . ." Then, in Odd's own hand and his favorite red ink is written: "If you please us for this paragraph to be the style in time."

THAT PARAGRAPH of foreboding may indeed have been "a stitch in time" as far as it pertained to McIntyre's beloved adopted home city, New York. New York never has had a disastrous fire, and the standards of fire prevention set by the New York board of underwriters are recognized as the most complete in existence. Perhaps those standards were tightened after Odd's flash of terror. . . . Boston apparently did not heed the warning, although the column from which we are quoting appeared in this newspaper.

THE COMING to this desk of an "original" from the hand of the great and adolized newspaperman McIntyre carries an interesting story. . . . Mrs. Harold G. (Betty) Kern, the Beacon street young matron and wife of the publisher of the Hearst papers in Boston, was asked to pose for a picture in New Bedford with Charles B. Driscoll, the author-columnist whose book "Kansas Irish" was being featured in a New Bedford literary carnival.

DRISCOLL was McIntyre's editor for most of his columning years, and his corrections (never of text) appear in black pencillings throughout the manuscript. . . . When Odd died, Driscoll presided as the closest family friend. . . . He then succeeded to the McIntyre syndication job, and has appeared with a column of his own in many of the papers which once used McIntyre's stuff. . . . But Charles Driscoll's affection for the great McIntyre is the knot that binds the two together most tightly.

HE HAS PRESERVED and cherished most of the McIntyre writing product. . . . In return for the favor of his posing with Driscoll for a new cameras, Driscoll promised Mrs. Kern a McIntyre "original." The coincidence in selecting the column from which we have quoted lines in poignant pertinence to Boston is the paragraph which begins: "It is the free commissioner's job, etc., etc."

Star Shine

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11—Everywhere, no matter where you stroll, people are discussing the coming presidential election.

There are many actors and directors who are for Roosevelt, and they are working with other actors and directors who are for Dewey.

Charles Coburn, a staunch Dewey man, is doing a scene for "The Arizona," which is being produced by Louis L. Luitsh, a producer Roosevelt man. Preminger is directing Coburn.

Preminger, not getting quite what he wants, suggests that Coburn be a little less restrained, a little more informal. Producer Luitsh, who is on the set, can't resist a comment: "You know, Charlie, a little less Dewey and a little more Roosevelt."

Coburn smiles. He does the scene again, and it is a take.

JOAN CAULFIELD, the young blonde star of "Kiss and Tell," is playing her first scene in her first picture, "Miss Susie Slaggs."

The setting is 1910 and the scene to be filmed is a party sequence. Joan, working with Sonny Tufts, is wearing an ankle-length white gown, choked at the neck with lace.

Director John Berry takes a look. "Too high," he says, calling a wardrobe girl. "Make the neck a little deeper. There's no appeal in that."

The wardrobe girl does it, and Joan is brought out again. "Lower," says Director Berry.

"O. K.," says the studio censor, "she can wear it like that if you lengthen the skirt so it covers her ankles. That makes it a good gown and it's O. K." "If they make it any lower," Joan whispers to Sonny Tufts, "I'll be more like an exclamation point than a period."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Something had to be done and it was palpably up to me to do it. So in response to public clamor, I am forming the HIMS.

This is a contraction, like the WACS. The full name of the organization is the Harold Is Mine.

Eligible are only those who claim they saw Ikes first and have exclusive peeping rights. Just ordinary doting him won't do.

If I did not have the evidence before me I would never dream there were so many claiming the venerable Secretary of the Interior. It is staggering.

For a long while I labored under the delusion that Ikes was mine. Then Westbrook Pegler said he was his. I reported this and it has been snowed under by claimants.

I even have a communication from Al Morano, Mrs. Claire Luce's secretary, who says there is an editor in Bridgeport, Ct., ready to fight both Pegler and me for Harold.

But the latest claimant is Paul Mallon, well-known political columnist. Mr. Mallon writes me as follows:

"Dear George: As an independent writer, I want to complain as bitterly as I can against the distasteful attempt of you and Mr. Pegler to fish from me the limp figure of Harold Ikes."

"It was I who first discovered that the lecherous lion which stalked the Interior Department and spat bitterness and bile was an empty-shirted collection of vanishing winds, and really as tame as a cat."

"While you were looking your typewriter on minor rats in New York, I remembered the Gladiators of New Deal politics whose only weapons were words which he thought were happy."

"Why, back in those days he was an ome to behold, from his asbestos tongue came sparks to burn practically all the universe that is, all to which Mr. Roosevelt directed those sparks."

"Now look at Ikes. At Chicago this year (and I know you

Onions Are Plentiful, So Serve Them Often

By MARTHA LEE

UNTIL THE SCARCITY of onions last year, we believe few people realized how much they contributed to our daily meals. Without the popular onion flavor many favorite dishes were drab indeed.

This year, thanks be to onions, plentiful again. But unless we buy and store them now we may be faced with a shortage next spring.

A few simple rules, carefully followed, will aid in the home storage of onions:

1—Select good, fully ripe onions.

2—Keep in a dry place. This is most important.

3—Keep at a temperature as near to freezing as possible, but do not permit to freeze; 32 to 35 degrees will be satisfactory.

4—Provide free circulation of air. A pantry or attic is usually superior to a cellar for storing, as cellars are often damp.

Now for a few suggestions for using onions. But first let us remind you that onions cooked with the cover off the saucepan are milder in flavor, easier to digest, of better color, and have less odor. Only a small amount of water need be added and almost completely boiled off. Any juice that is left may be used in soup, stew or gravy.

STUFFED ONIONS

5 or 6 large onions
4 cups chopped vegetable
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
2 tbsps. fat 1 tsp. salt
2 cups bread crumbs Pepper
Cut large onions in half crosswise, add a small amount of water and cook uncovered until almost tender. Remove the centers without disturbing the other layers and chop fine. Cook the vegetables and parsley in the fat for a few minutes, then add the bread crumbs, salt, pepper and chopped onion. Fill the onion shells with this stuffing and bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes, or until the onions are tender.

For a more hearty dish, chopped cooked meat or fish or baked beans may be used in the stuffing in place of most of the bread crumbs.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

4 medium-sized onions, chopped fine 1 qt. meat broth
2 tbsps. fat 4 tbsps. flour
1 pint boiling water
4 tbsps. cold water
Salt and pepper to taste
Toast 4 slices of bread
Cook the chopped onions in the fat until yellow, add to hot water and simmer for 20 minutes, or until tender. Add the meat broth. Blend the flour and cold water, add some of the hot liquid, mix well, stir into the soup and boil for a few minutes. Add the salt and pepper. Pour the soup into bowls, place on top a nice slice of toasted bread, sprinkle with cheese if you like and serve at once.

CHUTNEY

3 medium-sized onions
2 apples 1 tsp. salt
4 green tomatoes
3 green or red sweet peppers
1 tsp. celery seed
1 cup sugar 1/4 cup vinegar
Chop onions, apples, tomatoes and peppers. Mix remaining ingredients together and blend thoroughly. Pack into sterilized jars and seal.

STEWED ONIONS AND TOMATOES

Stew sliced onions with ripe or partially ripe tomatoes, thickened with a little flour or day-old bread, toasted and broken into small pieces. Canned tomatoes may be used. In this case, partially cook the onions before adding the tomatoes. They may be sautéed first in the frying pan in a little fat—meat drippings, chicken fat, bacon or pork fat, or margarine.

'Cream Gloves' For Fine Hands

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

WE NEVER COULD understand why people called autumn a sad season. To a woman . . . as far as we've been able to poll the question, at least . . . autumn brings a delicious sense of excitement and change. You want to rush right out and buy new things . . . change your hair . . . change your personality . . . give yourself a new face and face a new life.

But, hands and arms . . . poor things . . . too often they are beauty's stepchildren . . . neglected, forgotten and left in. And, we'll never be able to understand why a woman will spend all outdoors on prettifying up her face . . . but be content with a pair of hands that should never be displayed publicly . . . or for which she must constantly make apologies.

If you've waded through the shops lately . . . you've been awe-struck as we have . . . by the amazing array of gloves . . . rich in fabric, exotic in color . . . lures as vivid purples, riotous pinks . . . and in styles, necessities for the new outfit.

ONLY 10 MINUTES EACH NIGHT

It strikes us that hands must be pretty grand to even attempt the wearing of such fabulous fashions . . . to do them justice . . . and carry them off in the truly regal manner. Or, don't you care what these astounding accessories cover . . . so long as they conceal your hands? Well, some of them or other the gloves will have to come off . . . and what a terrible letdown it will be for you and the hands . . . usually a girl's dramatic advent . . . if they are sorry-looking, red, rough, thin-skinned affairs.

We DO know there's a war on . . . and that many of us who never did our own housework must do. But, that's no excuse for not ministering to the hands when the day's work is done . . . be it in the home or in the war plant. Let's resolve to give 10 minutes every night to their care . . . with a famous-name virgin flower cream that is one of the best for the job. And, once a week . . . do as a movie star does . . . and massage an extra generous helping into them and wear a pair of "cream gloves" to bed . . . as you slumber the night through.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Tuesday—I came down on the train yesterday morning, and, as usual, practically every seat soon filled up. At Beacon, a charming-looking woman sat down beside me. I smiled at her and went on reading my paper. When I finished, she spoke to me, and in the course of conversation I discovered that she and her husband were going down to New York City to celebrate the first year of their marriage.

They had not married very young, but in spite of her gray hair she looked young and very happy, and I feel sure that it was a real celebration. The encounter started my day off very nicely, for a glimpse of real happiness in this troubled world is always a pleasant thing! ★ ★ ★

I WENT FIRST to the lunch of the women's division of the Independent Citizens' Committee for Political Action. I was sorry that I had to leave before I had finished hearing Dr. Frank Kingdom, who is always an interesting speaker, and Quentin Reynolds, who is one of my favorite speakers.

I did have the pleasure, however, of hearing two charming ladies as presiding officers, Mrs. Edward Warburg and Dorothy Parker. Frank Sinatra then spoke briefly and was followed by Orson Welles, who spoke with his usual force and vigor.

Finally, Helen Keller spoke. To look at her and have her thoughts interpreted is always an inspiration, and I recalled a doctor who told me of her visit to some of our blind soldiers. "Just to know of her presence," he said, "seemed to encourage the boys."

I told Miss Keller of this, and she informed me that she was planning to make a tour of various hospitals.

LAST NIGHT I went to Carnegie Hall for an independent voters meeting.

Bonnet for Young Faces

By BETTINA BEDWELL

IN THE millinery fashions this fall there are a lot of hats that seem made for sophisticated women, and young girls won't feel right under them.

But there are youth hats, too, made particularly for the young face. Among them I know of none more attractive than Lilly Dache's Charlotte Corday bonnet. Though the girl for whom it is named came to a sad end in French history the girls who wear the bonnets ought to have very new things happen to them.

You can wear one of these bonnets in Miss Dulin's sketch. It is made of a pretty grey felt and the rippling brim has buttons any Charles F. Co. The trimming is a ribbon in bows and bands.

Welcoming Baby With Shower

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My sister is expecting her second baby. As her first child is almost 8 years old I think it would be nice to give her a baby shower. Should we make it a surprise or tell her about our plans?

Is it correct to give a shower for a second baby? Also, is it good form for a sister to give a shower, or should her girl friends give the shower?

C. R.
There should be no harm in giving a shower for a second baby, and I think it would be especially nice, since it is eight years ago that the first child was born.

Whichever you think best—surprise or not—would be correct. You know your sister's state of health better than I do, and if you think it might shock her too much, then tell her about it.

It would be better taste to let your girl friends give the shower at their home, and you might share expenses with them.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—Courageous, venturesome, intuitive, genial and capable. You are industrious, and this industriousness will undoubtedly bring you great achievement, but do not be too set in ideas and thus lose the advantage of new, ever-changing improvements. The stage, screen, law, judiciary, medical professions are some of the endeavors suited to your talents. Can be able at mechanics. Birthdate of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. "ARSENIC AND OLD LACE," the fabulous stage hit that makes wholesale murder mirthful has been transferred to the screen with Cary Grant starring in the "fat" critic-nephew role. Priscilla Lane plays the girl he loves. Opening tomorrow on the Met screen.

SUSAN HAYWARD never looked lovelier than in "The Hairy Ape," another film transcript of a successful stage play. Eugene O'Neill's famous drama of brains vs. brawn. It comes to Loew's State Theater only tomorrow with William Bendix in the title role.

Three War Shorts Ready

Three new War Information shorts, "It's Murder," "Target Japan" and a subject dealing with the necessity of supporting the forthcoming Sixth War Loan, are to be released on local screens tomorrow.

"It's Murder," produced by Columbia, is a "don't talk" short, which traces a series of disconnected bits of information into an Allied disaster.

Sec. of the Navy James Forrestal and Adm. Ernest King are the "stars" of "Target Japan," along with hosts of American bluejackets. Forrestal, King and the blue-jackets tell of the vastness of the job of defeating Japan.

The Sixth War Loan short, a film bulletin to be shown with all newsreels, throws the spotlight on the Marine Corps and their activities on the Pacific front, and shows how bond purchasers can hasten the defeat of the Japs.

WOMEN IN '40s HOT FLASHES?

Are You Embarrassed By HOT FLASHES?
If you, like so many women, between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, nervous tension, irritability, are a bit blue at times—all due to the functional middle age period peculiar to women—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms.
For almost a century thousands upon thousands of women—rich and poor alike—have reported remarkable benefits. Many wise women take Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against such annoying distresses.
Lydia Pinkham's Compound helps nature. It also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect. Follow label directions. Worth trying!

14 Races for Rock's Holiday Twin Bill

By JACK CONWAY

IF YOU SEE any camp fires burning on the foothills of New Hampshire in the vicinity of Rockingham Park to-night, you will know that some courageous racegoers merely wish to get an early start for Lou Smith's double-header on Columbus Day.

It is possible that some of the noble breed of bettors may even pitch their tents in the infield. A bugler could be detailed to awaken them in time to have breakfast and get into line for the daily double tickets of the morning program.

There will be six races in the morning with a post time of 10 a. m., while there will be eight races in the afternoon with a 2 p. m. post time. In the post-war period when it is possible to get a lighting system the versatile Lou Smith may also arrange to have six or eight night races. This would relieve race track devotees of the effort of trying to figure out where they will spend their evening.

Dave Wilson, Bill McAuley, Dave Komie, Bill Smith (The Clocker) and the other gallant handicappers would probably appreciate such a test on their ability to call them right.

The double-header will also give a fitting excuse for a picnic in the country. You will see families parked on the lawn at Rockingham Park. These groups will bring along camp chairs and enough groceries to keep everyone happy.

This festive spirit has spread throughout the track with the result that Bob Frend, the starter, with the able assistance of Mrs. Frend, will conduct an opening of the Turf and Tree Club between the morning and afternoon races. The club has established quarters in the tiny house Lou Smith had built for Frend and crew of assistant starters near the six furlongs chute so that they may escape any chill Autumn breezes.

Bob has sent out engraved invitations to his guests. Col. Dave Egan is considering donating a silk topper for the occasion, while Lou Smith and Mrs. Smith may ride to the opening on a couple of horses who do not break too fast.

Offer Attractive Purses

RACING SECRETARY John Turner used attractive purses as the bait to get large fields for his morning and afternoon races. For the six race morning card there will be three $1300 purses and three $1000 purses. The early bird at Rockingham Park will get more than worms.

So will the careful bettors if they can pick the daily double and the winners of the other races.

There will be a layoff of one hour and a half between the morning and afternoon cards. Lou Smith apparently felt that his clients should have a little time out as in football games. It will give the double offering a touch of the spirit that will engulf Boston and New England when Nute Darns comes to town to pick Dartmouth at Fenway Park on Saturday.

There also may be some persons who will wish to count their winnings, while others may desire a little time to figure out ways and means for getting money for the afternoon card.

There is also the matter of getting bodily nourishment from Bob Frend's party, picnic lunches or the track cafe and restaurant. Racegoers find they must eat regardless of how their fortunes fare at the track.

Profits to Charity

WHILE YOU are having your fun at the holiday races, war charities will be benefiting as they will receive all of the profits.

Jack Conway

This means that every thin dime that would ordinarily be turned into the track's treasury will go to war charities. Lou Smith would like to see this total reach $100,000.

With fair weather, 25,000 persons are expected to attend the races. This would mean a mutual handle of well over $1,000,000 for the 16 races. The young men with the statistical minds tell me that the mutual handle at Rockingham has been running 30 per cent ahead of that of last year. I hope this mark is maintained on Columbus Day when so many worthy war charities will share in the profits.

You may pitch your tent at Rockingham Park after today's races if you have any doubts of your ability to make the track in time to place two bobs on the morning double-header.

Youth Victim Of Game Injury

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 11 (AP)—John Garrity, 18, regular center on the Hillhouse High School football team, died yesterday at New Haven Hospital of a brain hemorrhage which Dr. Marjorie M. Scarbrough, medical examiner, said "probably had been caused by a head injury received while playing football."

Dr. Scarbrough made his report late last night after an autopsy had been performed by him at the hospital.

Garrity became ill shortly after playing against New Haven Commercial High School on Sept. 29 and complained of headaches, members of his family said.

The youth, a member of the Army Air Forces Reserve, played on the Hillhouse 1943 state championship team.

He was taken out of the Commercial game but Coach Root, former Yale mentor, said it was a routine substitution, as there was no indication Garrity had been injured.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Garrity, who, in addition to two sisters, survive him. Funeral services will be Thursday.

Santa Anita Stakes Races Largest in U. S.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11 (AP)—After three years of inactivity, Santa Anita race track will conduct what spokesmen call the richest stakes program ever held anywhere in its 35-day meeting starting Dec. 30.

The program calls for renewal of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, the $50,000 Derby, the $30,000 Santa Margarita Handicap for fillies and mares, and the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap at a mile and one-half.

Dorothy Paget Pays $27,200 for Filly

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 11 (AP)—Miss Dorothy Paget paid $27,200 yesterday for a filly out of the Hyperion blood line at the Newmarket yearling sales.

The filly is by Stardust out of Sister Clara, who never ran, but is a half-sister to Sunchariot, winner of eight races. Sales for the day aggregated $175,000.

ORIOLES LEAD IN SERIES BALTIMORE Md., Oct. 11 (INS)—The Baltimore Orioles held a 3-2 edge over the Louisville Colonels today in the Little World Series championship race after shutting out the Kentuckians, 10-0, before 19,463 fans last night in the Baltimore stadium.

Army-Navy Grid Shift To Philly Stadium Seen

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (INS)—The Army-Navy football game, scheduled to be played at Annapolis, Md., Dec. 2, will be transferred to the Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia, according to an exclusive story in the Bayonne, N. J., Times today. Public pres-

Name Bob Doerr Most Valuable

Martin Marion, shortstop of the Cardinals, and Bobby Doerr, second baseman who left the Red Sox as the leading American League hitter to enter the service, were named as the most valuable players in the major leagues for 1944 by the Sporting News, the national baseball weekly, in its annual awards, announced today.

Creating a special merit class for pitchers, few of whom ever qualify for the most valuable player because of the small number of games in which they participate. The Sporting News also designates Hal Newhouser of the Tigers and Bill Voiselle of the Giants from American and National Leagues, respectively, for the initial honors.

Doerr, whose brilliance was dimmed for several years by Joe Gordon and whose only close competitor for honors in the American League this season was another Yankee, George Stinewell, answered the call to the colors leading the league in hitting with an average of .325 and was third in runs driven in, with 78 playing his last game Sept. 3.

18 Twin Court Games Scheduled for N Y Garden

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Eighteen nights of college double-headers have been arranged for the 11th season of basketball in Madison Square Garden. The coming campaign opens Dec. 6 and runs through March 7.

Among the dates and rivals are Dec. 25 New York University vs. Tennessee, Brooklyn vs. Western Kentucky; Dec. 30 New York University vs. Colgate, St. John's vs. Dartmouth; Jan. 6 New York University vs. Connecticut, St. John's vs. Rhode Island State.

BEARS IN EXHIBITION

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 11 (AP)—Hershey Bears, who held top place in the eastern division of the American Hockey League last season, will play an exhibition game here with the Pittsburgh Hornets Saturday night, Oct. 14.

Lots of Good Boxers In Army, Says Louis

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, back from the European and African war theaters, expects some good fistic talent to emerge from the armed services.

The champ, only seven pounds over the 207½ pounds at which he made his last title defense against Abe Simon in 1942, said he ran into some "real tough boys" as he appeared in 73 exhibitions in England, Scotland, Ireland, Africa and Italy.

Louis said Elzira Thompson of Cleveland, whom he first met in a three-rounder in Reading, Eng., gave him so much trouble that he met him four more times. Then came Johnny Ebarb, an Air Corps mess officer from Oakland, Cal., whom he met in Italy twice, and George Culberson, a Brooklyn boy. Ebarb, said Louis, was a pretty good boxer, while Culberson was a puncher.

The champion, while in Italy, took several artillery shots at the German Gothic line, pulling lanyards on big guns manned by the 92d Division.

Capt. Fred Maly, former sports editor of the Baltimore, Tex., Express, who conducted the Louis tour, said the champion was the only one who "slept right on"

sure, says the Times, forced the authorities to change the site of the game from the Navy's home field, where only a comparative handful could see it, to the huge stadium in Philadelphia which can seat more than 100,000.

There was a storm of protest throughout the country when it was announced that the game would be held at Annapolis this year.

It was pointed out that the game could be held in Philadelphia, where it has been played so often in the past, without any more interruption of war effort than if it were held in Maryland.

Moreover, the annual classic would draw at least $300,000 more in Philadelphia than it would at Annapolis.

More football fans want to see the game this year than ever before because both service teams are rated among the strongest in the nation and it may be that the mythical title may hinge on the classic this time.

Stork's Visit Holds Up Coach

KEESLER FIELD, Miss., Oct. 11 (AP)—Capt. George B. Huffman, Keesler Field's head football coach, had a good excuse for being late for Sunday's game with the 142d Mississippi Ordnance Battalion. Mrs. Huffman was giving birth to a 7½-pound boy at a hospital.

"I wish I could get him ready for that Selman Field game Saturday night at Monroe, La., said the beaming captain. "We need a right halfback badly with two of our boys ailing."

Bricker Hurls Perfect Strike

WENATCHEE, Wash., Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, once a catcher for Ohio State University, took the other side of the battery last night and did all right.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President pitched the first ball in a game between American and National League all-stars—and it was over the plate for a strike.

Bricker attended the game after delivering a speech in the High School auditorium.

B. C. Is Ready For C. C. of N. Y.

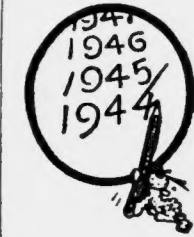

With only two more days of practice remaining before its second game, Coach Moody Sarnie has the Boston College eleven working hard in practice sessions at Alumni Field before its scheduled tilt with City College of New York at Braves Field under the lights Friday night.

The popular coach has been ironing out the flaws in the Eagles' attack which were evidenced Saturday against Harvard and the men from the Heights will be a hard aggregation to stop for the rest of the season.

Night football will be an unique venture for the Heightsmen, although they have played night baseball games before. But since the innovation of baseball under the synthetic sunlight has met with such approval of the fans, John P. Curley, graduate manager of athletics at the Heights, has arranged for two games under the maddas for this season's informal eleven.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

Two Swell School Grid Games Carded

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Although completely overshadowed in tradition by the Medford-Somerville clash tomorrow afternoon, the Malden-Melrose meeting school football program this Columbus Day as 24 contests offer the fans plenty of opportunity for action from 10:30 in the morning until dinner hour.

It's almost safe to say, in this most topsy-turvy of sports ventures, that the winner of this battle between these undefeated eleven will go on to take over the state championship.

Malden and Melrose are set for their greatest games of the season. Both are primed for what promises to be the Notre Dame-Army feature of the local campaign. Both had rugged tune-ups last week, winning out in late drives but probably only because both squads were thinking of this meeting tomorrow instead of concentrating on their opponents at that time. But they escaped with their records intact, as had been expected, to lend this game the importance it promised.

Melrose deserves a sentimental vote to win this ball game and although the Golden Tornado has been more impressive this season, the Red Raiders can, on their top play, come through on top. They've got everything but a thirst for victory, a factor which will play an important role in the final decision.

Last Saturday, Melrose played indifferent football against Newton—until the team was trailing. The line-men and the back-ups were making anything but clean tackles. The ends weren't forcing the Newton ball carriers with the result that a speedy back was picking up valuable yardage. The guards were frequently out of position on plays.

Coach Dave Gavin has had plenty to work on as a result of that Garden City squeeze. He's mighty proud of the 22 straight victories his teams have lost because of fundamentals.

Coach Gavin plans no changes in his starting line-up but it's possible that Tom Emerson will be replacing Al Rathbun at a starting halfback. Emerson looked great in ripping through Newton in setting up the winning touchdown. Alternating in ball carrying with Larry Brennan and Wendy Forbes, Emerson will give Malden plenty of trouble.

Coach Eddie Melanson at Malden has his team tuned to the championship tone. The Golden Tornado will have Nick Bolina back at right-halfback, although this fifty ball carrier had only a minute of play against Haver-

O'Connor May Meet Troupe

Patrick O'Connor's bid for a crack at the world's championship will be running into trouble tonight at the Arena when the Irish grappler squares off against Rebel Russell, Newport, R. I., in the feature of Promoter Paul Bowser's weekly wrestling show.

Three matches on the supporting card will complete the program. The semi-final will pit the Cardiff Giant, 342-pound Californian, against Les Ryan, Fordham, the weekly special will pair Manjo Singh, India, and Dr. John "Drop-Kick" Murphy, Acton osteopath, while the opener, slated for 8:15, will match Jack Smith, Army veteran from Jamaica Plain, and Mike Steinborn, weight lifting champion from Milwaukee.

Brothers Play On Opposing Teams

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 11 (AP)—Brother will face brother at Ann Arbor, Mich., Saturday when Northwestern and Michigan football teams meet in a Big Ten Conference game.

They are Duane Siskels, veteran Northwestern end, and Quentin Siskels, a freshman who has won a guard post with the Wolverines. Both were outstanding high school athletes in their home town of Denton Harbor, Mich.

Yanks Return Grid Player

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles announced yesterday they have reacquired Ted Lutz, the backfield man whom they traded to the Boston Yanks before the National Football League season opened.

Jannazzo Holds Plenty Speed

By RINGSIDE

Pete Reilly, manager of Marcel Cerdan, declared today that Izzy Jannazzo's speed and boxing skill give him a chance of winning against Ray (Sugar) Robinson in their 10-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden on Friday night.

"Jannazzo is one of the best boxers in the welterweight division," said Reilly. "He has what we folks in the game like to call ring class. Izzy has looked good in his training sessions at Lou Stillman's Gym in New York. He has been boxing regularly and as a result he should be at his best when he clashes with Robinson."

"I have not seen Robinson box recently. He is one of the greatest welterweights to come to the front in recent years, but he must have gathered ring rust during his stay in the Army. If Robinson slows down and is off in his judgment of distance, he will find Jannazzo will hit him with many a punch."

The Gillette Safety Razor Co., in view of the national importance of the bout, has made arrangements to broadcast it over 80 stations. Bill Corum will be at the ringside to give the color of the bout and his version of what is happening in the ring.

Triangle—Pvt. William Jardine (left) of Chicago; his wife, Ester, 21, mother of two children, and Russell Taylor (right), a war plant worker, appear in domestic relations court after Jardine, on a surprise visit from Ft. Lewis, Wash., found his wife and Taylor in a state of disattire in the Jardine home. The court scored Mrs. Jardine as unfit to care for the children and ordered them turned over to their paternal grandparents.
